From the Book of QBL

..Kabbalists often describe Gevurah as the most severe place on the tree, a testing point. If we think of ourselves as traveling upwards on the tree(in a sense, back to our origins), then Gevurah becomes the place where we must shed our own weaknesses before we can revel in the overwhelming love and mercy of Chesed. This holds especially for the weaknesses we do not acknowledge in ourselves, those we keep hidden or deny, those we project onto others. It may seem unfair that we must pass through the harsh light of Gevurah before we can proceed to Chesed. But how can we accept the mercy of divine grace until we accept who we truly are?

The Last Word:

... this study is full of forms. But these are of no use whatsoever unless they occur within our life... not as special activities on weekends or on occasions, but within our life day by day, moment by moment...

Gevurah and the Shadow (SELF)

"Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men? The Shadow knows..."

Food for thought?

Design a course of meditative practice to open to your shadow Self. Embracing the dark, allows the brilliance of the Light to illuminate your Path
